Elections Set For Senators

Elections and election results control the campus political scene as Wartburg students continue their march to the polls this week.

Scheduled for voting this week are both primaries and finals in class senatorial elections. Initial balloting is scheduled for Tuesday with finals on Thursday, according to senior Dick Lehmann, Elections Committee chairman.

Results of Wednesday's class presidential elections revealed Harry Hinrichs, senior class president for 1956-57. Hinrichs, a pre-theological student, is from St. Joseph, Ill.

Named to next year's junior class leader spot was Joy Eisenhauer, pre-the from Burr, Neb.

Jim Schwarz was picked by freshman voters to head next year's sophs. Also a pre-the, Schwarz is from Middleton, Wis.

'I'll Remember April' Jr.-Sr. Theme Tonite

By Valeria Gerlt

Surrounded by the nostalgic beauty of the Far East, students at the Junior-Senior Banquet will long remember that "April is cherry blossom time in Japan."

J. V. Rowe

Beginning at 6:30 this evening in St. Paul's Parish House, the banquet is centered around the theme "I'll Remember April." Jim Roever, junior, will serve as toastmaster. Featured on the program will be a solo by Sharon Folkerts, sophomore, and a skit entitled "April Scholars" by Grossman Hall.

Rowe To Speak

J. V. Rowe, Waterloo, an active speaker and prominent community worker, is to address the group on the topic, "Is it a Dream?" He has been the speaker at many service clubs and gatherings in the Waterloo area.

After attending Buena Vista College, Storm Lake, Rowe took employment with the D-X Sunray Oil Company. Working with this organization for 28 years, he is now the assistant division auditor.

Boy Scout President

In addition to being the current president of the Wapsipinicon Area Boy Scouts and holder of the silver beaver, volunteer scouting's highest award, Rowe also has been active in Community Chest and Credit Association and is a past president of the Waterloo Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The committees in charge of the banquet are headed by juniors Lois Lehmann, program and entertainment; Carla Karsten and Jo Ann Dettmann, decorations; Valeria Johnson, food; Ed Schneider, publicity; and Le Roy Remmers, tickets. Helen Schwerin is general chairman.

Landscaping Under Way For Fine Arts Building

Work was begun Wednesday on the landseape around the Fine Arts Building. Recent additions to the structure, to be completed this summer, include installation of doors, windows and the heating system.

At present the constructors are awaiting the return of workmen to finish the ceiling, while school officials are beginning to choose paint colors for the interior of the building.

Senators Go Over Revisions In Student Body Constitution

By Harold Kurtz
News Editor

Constitutional revision occupied most of Monday night's two hour Senate meeting as senators waded through some 18 articles of a proposed general overhauling of student government.

Reports beard included a summary of this year's Student Body Project drive by chairman Marvin Remmers, junior; a report on the regional National Student Association meeting at Ames, by Student Body President-elect Don Altmann; and a general resume by SBP Don Manthei.

Presenting the proposed constitution was Junior Senator Milt Ost. Frequent debate and argument interrupted proceedings on several proposed changes. Arousing the greatest clamor was the wording of the preamble.

Vogel Questions Rights

The clause listing one of the functions of student government, "to protect the rights of students," aroused questioning by Bob Vogel, senior senator.

"What do you mean by rights?" he asked. "Students have only the rights given to them by the administration. How do you protect them?"

Continued Senate study was recommended for the new constitution with a special Senate session scheduled for Monday. Final ratification by the student body is necessary before the proposed constitution goes into effect.

Report Debated

Also invoking considerable comment was SBP Manthei's report. Under a plan presented by the dean of students, Wartburg students would be given the opportunity to take advantage of a linen rental system.

In the proposed plan, students who desired this service would be provided with bed linen, towels and wash cloths weekly for $12.50 a semester.

Final tabulation of the SB Project revealed a total of $1,510.28 raised. Of this, $1,006.68 was obtained through solicitations, with the remainder being raised at the student body carnival.

Little Ashram Slated Friday, Saturday

The Iowa Region Lutheran Student Association will hold its annual "Little Ashram" next Friday and Saturday at Camp Ingawanis.

Little Ashram, a "corporate spiritual quest," is sponsored by the Lutheran college students in Iowa. Dr. Narum, St. Olaf, Northfield, Minn., who will deliver Thursday's convocation address, is the main speaker. The Rev. Edwin Schick, college chaplain, is the Bible study leader. "Ethics, a Luxury or Necessity" is the theme for the spiritual retreat.

Registration is $1; food, $2; and lodging for one night, $.50. Registration blanks are on the table near the library in Luther Hall for those desiring to attend. Transportation will be provided to Camp Ingawanis.

Trumpet Achieves 10th All-American Award From ACP

All-American for the tenth time in 11 years.

That's the report TRUMPET editor Ken Starck, senior, received this week regarding the college paper for the first semester. According to ratings received from the Associated Collegiate Press, the TRUMPET was one of 11 college weeklies in its class to receive this highest possible rating.

Receiving "superior" ratings was the sports display. Fourteen "excellents" received mention.

Getting special recognition were "Knight Beat," features and editorial page make-up. Commenting on the editorials, judge G. D. Tieberal said, "Your editorials ring a bell because they are written in a bright, readable style."

This marks the first year that Wartburg has entered in the 751-1250 enrollment judging class.

Where To Look

Wartburg's clash with Upper Iowa University Peacocks, slated for this afternoon on the local diamond, was postponed late this morning. Coach Earnie Oppermann said that the game will be played on either May 14 or 11.

Three one-act dramas to be presented theater-in-the-round will be given by Wartburg Players in the Little Theater beginning Wednesday and continuing nightly through Saturday. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

Wednesday's performance will climax the High School Visitation Day program.

"A Marriage Proposal," one of the world's foremost one-act plays, by Anton Tchekoff, will begin the evening's entertainment. George Herbener, junior, will portray Lomov, who is seeking the hand in marriage of Natalia Stepanovna, played by Joan Pape, freshman.

Werner Plays Father

The role of her father, Stepan Stepanovitch Tschubukov, will be in the hands of John Werner, sophomore.

From Russia the audience will be transported to England for a production of "Box and Cox," by John Madison Morton. Mrs. Bouncer, played by Elizabeth Fosbe, freshman, is the proprietress of a rooming house.

Sophomores Jon Tehven and Bill Melvin are cast as two boarders, Box and Cox, who work at different times of the day and are both renting the same room, unbeknowing to one another. They meet by chance with interesting results.

Climaxing the evening will be the presentation of "Curse You, Jack Dalton!" an old fashioned melodrama complete with handle bar moustaches and hapless heroines.

Loslo Portrays Villian

Bob Loslo, sophomore, as Egbert Van Horn the villain, pursues Eloise Dalton, played by freshman Gwen Mueller, to gain her hand in marriage. The villainess Anna Alvarado, portrayed by Carol Ann Keller, freshman, attempts to entice Jim Martin,

"WE WANT OUTFLY." "We want Outfly." The words echoed about the campus late Wednesday night and again early Thursday morning when rain-drenched students congregated in the front yard of the man who could give it to them, Pres. C. H. Becker. Much of the morning was spent under umbrellas, but as the day progressed, students were soon abandoning their card and chess games and basking under the warm Iowa sun that intermittently punctured the low hanging clouds. Two students, Duane Brown and Kathy Marins, even became so bold as to saunter over to the college sundial to get the time of day. They concluded that someone had neglected to wind it. By night fall, students, like Julius Slater, enthusiastically returned to their textbooks in anticipation of the next day's classes.

Outfly Quite Unique

The weather forecast called for rain. Mrs. Grube's kitchen was ripe with picnic food. Many students had exams scheduled. And Wartburg decided to observe its much cherished but little nourished, tradition of Outfly.

Nearly everyone had a good time—who doesn't when textbooks can be slammed shut and the classrooms can be left to gathering dust? After all, it isn't every day that a student can enjoy a full day of relaxation and recreation without being bothered with a guilty conscience toward his schoolwork.

But this time Outfly was unique. It was unique in several ways. Not on account of the April showers, because it's rained on Outfly days before. But it was unique in several special respects.

First, seldom has the student body been forced to congregate twice in one day in front of President Becker's home in order to obtain permission to have Outfly. But it did happen last Thursday. Only barely was the not-more-than one-third of the student body that trekked across Dr. Becker's lawn twice able to muster enough support from its own ranks to warrant the sanction of the president.

Anyone who has spoken to the president about Outfly knows that he is a firm supporter of the traditional day off. Late Wednesday afternoon he was quoted as saying that "any time" for Outfly would be satisfactory with him, as long as the weather was accommodating.

So President Becker's hesitancy in approving Outfly was unique.

The second thing that was unique was how such a small group of rabble rousers was able to successfully instigate the whole affair. The Outfly Committee, whose job it was to make the official declaration of the student body attempt at Outfly, was completely unaware of the small group and its apparently premeditated notions to observe the student body's old tradition of Outfly.

This is unique, for it isn't every day that a band of head-strong individuals can experience those thrilling moments of hard won glory.

Thirdly, and this wasn't so unique, a wet blanket completely smothered any vestiges of student leadership, student cooperation and student responsibility that might have prevailed last Thursday.

Now the picnic food is gone. Some of the tests are still to come. The anxiety of Outfly has passed. It was a unique Outfly.

GLOBULAR GLIBBLINGS

Jolly Englishmen Entertain Two For Tea Then Quickly Withdraw The Welcome Mat

By Don Obardorfer

One of the greater moments of the world's history took place a few days ago when the top men of Russia—Bulganin and Khruschev—landed on the historic shores of England.

Oberdorfer

The party chiefs from Russia were determined to make this a profitable visit. This was their chance to spread propaganda throughout the land of the kings.

After a few days, during which the delegates were treated royally, the reception cooled rapidly and soon disintegreted altogether.

The majority of the people, primarily anti-Communistic, listened to the emotion - filled voices of the bosses and blessed them with heart - felt hoos at the end. This trip to England, which was supposed to be a great success, looked at if it were doomed to failure.

All this apparently did not bother the visitors too much, however. They reacted as if they had been expecting this sort of treatment all along.

They were not prepared, however, for the show of intense hetred that the British were showing. There were even a few clenched fists which were waved at Bulganin and Khruschev.

B. and K., as they were referred to by the British, gave long conciliatory speeches in which they presented their old line of chatter.

All of this pseudo - denouncement of war and all that is entailed with it did not make an impression on the hard working people of that nation. The atmosphere of friendliness that had been built up by the previous visit of Malenkov was now practically negligible.

Tha recent exposures of Stalin as a dictator had showed to these people that the basic feeling of trust and love which the Communists hed so often set forth wes not to be trusted.

What was the outcome of all this? The departure of the Russians from England in a brief and disturbed manner. Their visit had not been a success as they had expected.

One thing, however, hed been accomplished. That was the evident insight that the British people gained in looking into the twisted minds of the Russian diplomats.

Footnotes To Faith:

Insight Into Reality A Must For Conscientious Christian

By Wayne Weissenbuehler

It is common experience for us all to leave a place of worship filled with a feeling rich with spiritual significance. Yet all too soon the sight of such common things as cars, people we know, dogs, stores and the like make us feel that somehow that which we have felt in church wasn't a "real" feeling and that this now is "real".

Weissenbuehler

If we as mature Christians are to have a faith big enough to meet the challenge that is before us, it must include the whole of our life. It must be able to produce in us tha conviction that all reality is God's.

When we stoop down to pet that dog, we must be just as aware of His presence as we are when we are seated in worship. If God is, then He must be big enough to include in His providence our lives as we change a tire, study for a test or sip a coke in the den.

Reality is an ambiguous term. To each it means a different thing. To one philosopher it may mean a world of sense perceptions, to another a realm of idealistic concepts. To us the reality is focused on One and summed up in the words, "He who follows me will not walk in darkness, but will have the light of life."

If we are to dedicate our wills to His, we must need to be aware of the Reality of God in all that we do or say. Let us never depend on our sense of God's reality to give us that by which we will guide our lives.

In the bull sessions in the dorm, we often are far from any sense of feeling religious or spiritual, but yet we can have a sense of the reality of God. The sense is not only knowledge about, but acquaintance with. This will give us the foundation from which to build each minute, and it can never change because the Reality never changes.

Campus Inventor Doesn't Eye Patent Office

By Jim Roever

Yale University graduated Eli Whitney, and Alexander Graham Bell attended the University of London, but these schools have nothing on Wartburg College. Wartburg is the home of Joel Maring, boy inventor.

In addition to 14 hours of class work, including student teaching, some 45 hours of work per week in Waterloo and countless extracurricular activities, he still has time to work on his various inventions.

"I've been tinkering around with them for four or five years," said Maring, "and get a great deal of enjoyment out of it."

It all started in high school when he and some friends came across an abandoned automobile in a pasture. Wheelless and windowless, with grass growing up through the upholstery, it definitely needed rejuvenating, Maring recalls.

"By the end of the summer it was equipped with white sidewalls, a one-piece windshield and a continental trunk, along with many other accessories."

In case you buy a box of pencils and tire of sharpening them all by hand, you might dash over to Alpha House and make use of the Maring Automatic Pencil Sharpener.

"I call it my ham-can-ukulele," said Maring as he sat on his bed plucking the strings.

Artists and secretaries will be elated if two inventions, now in the drawing stage, are perfected. One is an automatic paintbrush cleaner run by batteries so that it may be taken on location. The other is an apparatus that folds a letter so that all you have to do is put it in the envelope.

When asked if he had ever attempted to patent any of the products of his skill, he replied, as he sat fingering the hole in the bottom of his shoe, "Of all my countless inventions, I have never attempted getting any patents, lest I should become a millionaire and be burdened with the worry and anxiety of economic success."

A BOON FOR one-armed people is the Maring Automatic Pencil Sharpener. You merely stick the pencil in, and watch the machine do the work.

Bell and Whitney may have the fame, but Joel Maring has all the fun.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

SBP Question Gets Answers

Dear Mr. Ahudu:

In answer to your request for an investigation of the recent Student Body Presidential election, I should like to inform you that at the time of the election I found, and as a result of further study still hold that the election was constitutionally legal and fair.

Beyond this, it is not the duty of my office to announce or explain election results or irregularities. I made the election results announcement for SBP and vice president in convocation at the request of the Election Committee. To this committee I have referred your request for clarification of the election.

Respectfully Yours,
Don Manthei, SBP

Dear Students:

In reply to the questions concerning the Student Body Presidential elections, I would like to clarify certain items.

First, explanations were given to Mr. Ahudu and the TRUMPET stating the cause for the disqualification of the 167 ballots. They were not allowed because they failed to meet the requirements set up by the Elections Committee.

The fault does not lie in the preferential system itself or in the understanding of the same but possibly stems from the manner in which the rules were stated on the hellot.

The Elections Committeee should have gone further than to merely instruct the students to vote preferentially: "placing a 1 for first choice, 2 for second choice, 3 for third choice, etc." This would mislead some voters who would quickly scan the rules and vote.

The Elections Committee would appreciate it very much if the students would take more time and care in reading the rules. Anyone having any additional questions should direct the same to the Elections Committee.

Dick Lehmann, Elections Committee Chairman

Crew Cuts Like College Groups

By Herold Kurtz
News Editor

Something new has been added to the Wartburg scene and judging from the audience's reaction, it should become a permanent feature.

For the 1,400 - plus prople who attended the Crew Cuts' show in Knights Gymnasium Tuesday, the result was a delightful evening. Although there were a few "Blue" notes, nevertheless the program ended only too soon.

Backstage, the Crew Cuts were as talkative as earlier they had been singative. Music, quite naturally, was the topic and, although the four men of song were harmonious in voice, their views on music were quite divergent.

Take Rock and Roll for instance. Commants on this renged from "Rock and Roll is through," "Rock- Roll is at its height," to "It will be a permanent part of American 'pop' music." Quertet clown Pat Barret didn't offar an opinion on tha subject.

Comments were given as freely as autographs. How was the audience?

"Best audience we've had since we played the University of Arkansas," said the group's leader, Rudi Maugeri.

"Yeah," responded Johnnie Perkins, "I like college audiences. Then you know you've got someone out in front listening to you."

The hair cut boys like concerts hetter than dances.

"The trouble with dances," remarked the foursome's bass Ray Perkins, "is that people don't come to listen to you lika they did tonight."

CREW CUTS dalight last Tuasday night's audience with their rendition of a populer hit tune.

Appearing here as part of a current eight week tour of one night stops, the group came here from Dubuque with the next appearance slated for Indiana State Teachers College, Terre Haute.

"Wa were lucky", commanted Rudi, raferring to tha group's surga to popularity. "It was all due to 'Sh-Boom.' Wa'll never find another song like that," he addad a bit ruefully, thinking of the some two million records that it has sold

The mandate of tbe audience was clear: "Give Wartburg another 'pop' concert next year."

500 Seniors Expected To Register Wednesday For Annual Visitation Day

Annual High School Visitation Day will get under way next Wednesday at 8 a.m. with an anticipated 500 prospective rollege students and their parents registering in Knights Gymnasium.

Various activities throughout the morning will include open house of all college residences for visitors, ronvocation at 11 a.m. and a noon faculty music recital.

The Beta Delta chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma will serve refreshments at the Publications House from 10 - 11 a.m. and 4:30 - 5:30 p.m. for visitors interested in journalism. A miniature newspaper, edited by TRUMPET News Editor Harold Kurtz, will be given to all attending the day's events.

Classes From 8 - 11

Prospective students are invited to attend classes of their choice and counsel with memhers of the faculty. Regular morning classes will he held from 8 until 11.

The Student Senate will be in charge of previding guides for tours during the day. Envelopes for distributing a written welcome and schedules of the class and the counseling programs will he donated hy the Lutheran Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Athletes To Oina

A lettermen's luncheon for all high school and rollege lettermen will he held in Knights Gymnasium at 4:30 p.m. The 6:45 evening chapel services will alsо be in Knights Gymnasium.

Wartburg Players will climax the day's events with a preview presentation of three one-act theater-in-the-round plays.

Award Waltmann Math Assistantship

Bill Waltmann, Cedar Falls senior, has been given a mathematics assistantship at Iowa State College, Ames.

The announcement was made this week by Dr. John Chellevold, dean of faculty. Waltmann, a mathematics major, will be graduated from Wartburg this spring.

Three Join Ranks Of Radio Fraternity

Three pledges joined the ranks of Pi Beta Epsilon, national radio arts fraternity, during initiation ceremonies held Wednesday evening.

Sophomores Bob Loslo and Gerry Dexter and junior Cy Waissrott were given membership pins.

The sun came out after all. If you noticed all the irate protests from some of the students about the rain, just think of the complaining that would have heen heard if President Becker hed chosen not to sanction Outfiy. But we had it, and the faculty can breathe easily for another few months. Especially Uncle Herb Engelbrecht and Dean Oppermann, who were forced to stay up a good part of the night.

I have survived my fourth Outfly now, and it never fails to amuse me how miserable Warthurg women can look at five in the morning.

Next time Outfly rolls around, try to ignore the fanatical expressions on tha student's feces for a moment and notice the large variety of weird and distinctive headgear worn by some of the students.

It's heen an interesting week. Outfly and the Crew Cuts, too. The happiest note of the whole affair is that the popular concert was a financial, as well as an entertaining success. And that means a lot around here.

One student's comment about Blue Barron, however, was: "Pretty blue and pretty harren."

If you sat near one of tha members of the Artists Series Committee you might have datected a scowl on his face thet seemed to say, "I hope the people don't confuse this with the Artist Series." To each his own.

The math major who cuts his calculus class to play golf is almost as had as the physical education major who cuts his golf class to study his calculus.

Leon Webrand had an explanation for his pitching loss on opening day: "Everyone of them lousy players that came up had a bat in his hand."

Ford Ok's Use Of Gift For Investment In New Centennial Hall Addition: Becker

Wartburg has heen given the green light by the Ford Motor Company to use half of the $163,900 grant bestowed last December to help finance construction of a new $315,000 addition to Centennial Hall.

Pres. C. H. Becker revealed this week that communications with the Ford representatives have stipulated thet the company would have no objection to investing half of the grant in the income-producing dorm addition, as long as the investment is free from encroachment and provides a reasonahle return.

Information To Regents

Becker will present the information to the college Board of Regents at its next meeting and recommend that the step be taken. He noted that under the arrangement now made possible the Building other campus additions, including a new library building and a large men's dormitory, at an earlier date.

Major aim of the Ford company in presenting the grants is to raise the average salary of teachers of candidates for B. A. degrees at least four per cent. Under the stipulations of the grant the money is to be presented in two parts. The first half will become available in June.

The capital of this money may not be used immediately however. It must be invested to yield four per cent and the return on the investment used to supplement faculty salaries for ten years. After that the rollege is free to use the capital in whatever manner it may choose.

Regent Given Free Hend

According to a Ford vice-president, the Board of Regents may make any investment that is safe and ronsistent with its ohligations as a board. They are as free as they would be with college funds.

Of the $315,000 cost of the new dormitory addition, $150,000 will be met hy the American Lutheran Church. Becker hoped that this, combined with the Ford money, would make it possihle to have the huilding paid for hy the time of its completion — sometime before the fall of 1957.

Room rent paid hy the coeds occupying the new addition will be calculated as return on the investment of the Ford funds and turned into pay hikes for the faculty memhers. Becker estimated that $6,560 may be set aside annually for salary increases.

Knights Host Peacocks Today

Aim For UIU's Perfect Slate

By Dale Kopitzke

Shooting for their fourth victory in five starts, Knight diamondmen make their home debut against league-leading Upper Iowa University at 2:30 this afternoon on the north field.

In last year's Iowa Conference race UIU (9-4) finished a half game ahead of Wartburg (8-4) and trailed the loop champions Buena Vista (12-2) by 2½ games.

This year the Peacocks have jumped off to a fast 4-0 conference mark and a perfect 9-0 overall record. The Fayette nine holds three victories over Great Lakes, two over Central and Parsons, while whipping Cornell for the other win.

Chuck Maahs

Peacocks Tough

With a near veteran squad returning, UIU will be hard to stop in this afternoon's encounter. Bob Underhill, a good freshman chucker from Austin, Minn., has added strength to their mound staff.

Coach Earnest Oppermann will give either big Leon Webrand or Fred Jaspers the twirling assignment today. Jaspers has a 2-0 record and Webrand a 1-1 mark thus far.

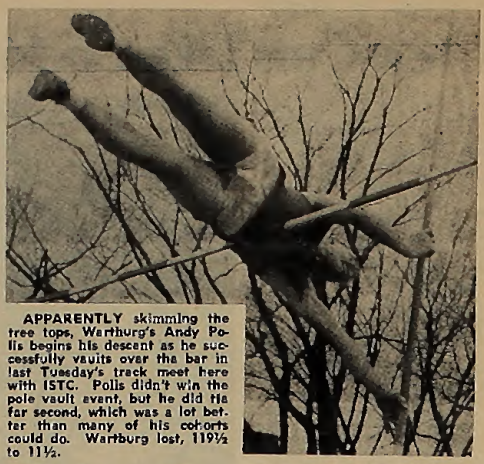
Bomhoff Doubtful

Bill Bomhoff, who reinjured his leg in Tuesday's track meet, is a doubtful starter today. But he may see limited action in right field, according to Oppermann.

Tuesday Wartburg will travel to Fayette for a return engagement with Upper Iowa. Both games could be a deciding factor in the Iowa Conference race.

Playing before a high school visitation crowd, the Knights will take on Luther College on Wednesday afternoon at 2.

The Norskies, with a veteran line-up, have dropped two non-conference double-headers to Minnesota and Iowa Universities, but hold a 3-1 conference mark.



APPARENTLY skimming the tree tops, Wartburg's Andy Polis begins his descent as he successfully vaults over the bar in last Tuesday's track meet here with ISTC. Polis didn't win the pole vault event, but he did it far second, which was a lot better than many of his cohorts could do. Wartburg lost, 119½ to 11½.

Wartburg's track team begins a week of heavy activity today at Des Moines with two relay teams entered in the Drake Relays.

Running in the Iowa Colleges division at Drake today will be Coach Bob Campbell's 880 - yard and mile relay teams. They will be competing against the top flight squads of Iowa's other small colleges.

Wednesday afternoon Grinnell, Midwest Conference representative, invades Waverly for a High School Visitation Day dual meet with the Knights.

Next Friday and Saturday Wartburg will compete in the Viking Olympics at Rock Island, Ill. Fellow Lutheran schools that make up an imposing field include host school Augustana, Luther, Carthage, Valparaiso, St. Olaf and Gustavus Adolphus.

The Knights will be running without the services of ace dashman, Bill Bomhoff, who reinjured a leg muscle in last week's dual meet with Iowa State Teachers College.

Last year in the Olympics, Wartburg tracksters could muster only 29½ points. The previous year Wartburg garnered 46¼ tallies, three short of Valparaiso's high total of 49½.

ROARING INTO third base safely is Maynard Midtgaard. The action took place during intrasquad scrimmage last Thursday.

Oppiemen Squeeze Out Pair Of Thrillers Over Wesleyan

Wartburg's baseball team saw plenty of action in last Saturday's twin bill as it was forced to go extra innings in both tilts before gaining 4-3 and 5-1 victories over Iowa Wesleyan.

Right-handed twirlers Fred Jaspers and Leon Webrand turned in sparkling performances, both going the route in the 11 and 9 inning battles. Jaspers fanned eight, walked three and gave up a meager seven hits in the first tilt. Webrand scattered six bits, walked one, and set eleven Tigers down on strikes.

Don Staude, Knight backstop, pounded out three hits in four trips to lead Wartburg's stickers in the opener. He added one more in the nightcap, finishing the day with four for six.

Leading Knight hitters in the second contest were Bill Bomhoff, right fielder, and keystone man Art Margheim. Each collected two safeties in four trips in the 5-1 win.

Commenting on the two tilts, Coach Earnest Oppermann remarked, "The boys played good, steady ball except for the eighth inning of the first game. I was pleased with the fine pitching turned in by both Jaspers and Webrand."

Racket Team Meets Central Here Today

Knight racket men will be trying for their third net victory in five starts this afternoon when they take on Central in the home opener for Wartburg.

After romping over Dubuque University Saturday, they dropped a tight 5-4 decision to the Norse netters from Luther at Decorah Tuesday.

Jack Warber, Stan Vogel and Fritz Fritschel continued unbeaten in singles play as they easily downed their opponents in both meets. Currently ranked number three, four and five, the trio were the only winners in the Luther meet.

Top-rated Les Huth lost to Luther's number one man, Jim Paulson, while Wartburg's two and three men Bob Cornwell and Bill Thalacker, were also defeated.

Next Wednesday, High School Visitation Day, the Knights play host to fowa State Teachers College on the Wartburg courts. Always tough, the ISTC racket men succeeded in downing the Knights twice last year.

Percentages Show Knights Winning

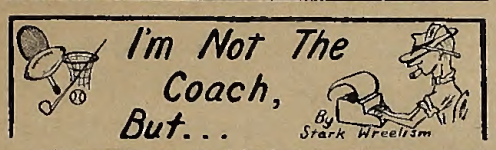
Knight athletes are currently holding a .558 percentage in their overall record in seven sports. Engaging in 54 different encounters thus far, Wartburg has won 28, lost 23 and tied two.

With a f7-8 mark, Knight hoopsters succeeded in posting the best won - lost record to date. Still to be played are f2 baseball games, six tennis meets, six golf matches and seven track meets.

Bahlmann's Get Crown By Not Playing Ball

Al Bahlmann's vollyball team captured the intramural championship last Thursday and didn't even show up for the scheduled evening's action.

Outfly interrupted the games slated for Thursday, the last night of intramural action, and when the final tabulations were made, Bahlmann's, with a clean mark of 7-0, emerged champs. Andy Polis' outfit posted a 7-1 record and wound up in second place.



A large, empty space set off by the sheen of metallic ornaments is currently getting more focal attention than even the bulletin board outside Oppie's office.

If you think something is missing that shouldn't be, then you're right. But if you think it's the Knight again, then you're wrong. The several-foot high fowa Conference basketball trophy, which Wartburg has boused for one year, is gone.

The earliest possible data of its return is six months from now, and then again, it might take a long, long time before it decides to drop in on us again.

Several weeks ago a Parsons' public relations representative dropped in on the Wartburg campus and carted it back to his Fairfield habitat. Now anyone can tell you that that just isn't good public relations.

But technically speaking, the traveling trophy, emblematic of the cage championship, belongs to Parsons. According to the rules of the fowa Conference, the basketball trophy is to be presented to the team that posts the best won-lost record at the end of the season. Parsons, with a nudge from the conference commissioner, did just that.

However, the antire affair, all of the protesting, reprotesting and protest-protesting, must receive the official approval of the executive committee of the Iowa Conference. This group will meet on the ave of the loop track meet in mid-May to discuss the course of action to be taken.

Until then Parsons will be gleaming with the luster of the elusive trophy. In the event that the executive committee decides to override the commissioner's last ruling, then the championship symbol will be held six months each by Wartburg and Parsons.

Up for consideration at the May meeting will be the protest of the second revised protest (this could get complicated) as lodged by Buena Vista officials. If accepted, this protest would offset the commissioner's final action on the affair and give the Knights half of the confereoce crown.

CLIPPINGS AROUND THE LOOP: A recently scheduled Iowa Wasleyan-Parsons track meet had to be called off because Wasleyan was able to get only five man out for track. But if you think that's bad, a weak later Wesleyan was slated to meet Carthage on the cinder paths, and this time, only one man for Wesleyan showed up. He wasn't Jessa Owens, either, so that meet had to be canceled, too.

Parsons has, indeed, risen to the rank of Iowa Conference powerhouse. One of the main reasons for this has been the athletic enthusiasm generated by Parsons students. Here's a clipping from their college newspaper: "Who knows we may be the winner of four conference championships—football, basketball, track and baseball." Who knows?

Golfers Host Favored Loras After Dividing Two Matches

fdle since last Monday, the Knight linksmen will return to action Wednesday afternoon when they meet Loras of Dubuque on the Waverly course in a High School Visitation Day special.

After stopping Coe, f2-3, last Saturday, the Jomen then lost a close 7½-4½ match to fowa State Teachers College last Monday on the Cedar Falls fairways.

Scott

Against Coe College freshman Bill Anderson slammed a miraculous 200-shot that bounded up onto the green and into the cup. The shot gave him a double eagle three on the 629 year, par six, eighth hole. Anderson had no trouble in subduing his opponent, 78-86.

Freshman Dick Rausch took medalist honors in the Coe meet, shooting a four over par for the day's low of 74 strokes. Anderson of Wartburg took runner-up spot by shooting a 78.

fn the Coe meet, Rausch had to settle for a three-way tie for low score. Hitting 79 were Wartburg's Rausch and Wilharm and Coe's Ross.

Wartburg, the defending conference champs, face a tough assignment when they meet the DuHawks of Loras. Coursing one of the better teams in the state, the DuHawks are favored by a slight edge over the Knight teesters.

Coe Summary

Hof (W), 81, defeated Gordon, 85, 3-0
Ellenne, 1C), 80, defeated Scott, 84, 3-0
Rausch, (W) 74, defeated Vick, 81, 3-0

THRIVING ON STRIKES, SPARES, HAMBURGERS

Men Polish Lanes With Vigor

By John Polis

The deep thunder of bowling balls, the hollow clang of the dropping pins and cries for pop echo throughout the local bowling lanes every Wednesday night as college bowlers mix strikes and spares with hamburgers and sundaes.

First organized in 1950, the league has grown to the present number of eight teams. Piloting the league is John Kreilick, and Phil Moeller is secretary-treasurer.

According to Don Boyken, manager of the bowling establishment, the lanes are kept busy every night of the week. Nine different leagues take turns knocking down pins.

Big Wednesday Nights

Student and faculty bowlers, however, provide enough competition one night to throw Manager Boyken into a tenpin dilemma for the rest of the week.

Probably the liveliest bowlers in any league can be mirrored in John Cbezik and Bob Campbell, both members of the Bowl Inn five.

"When the pressure is the toughest, faculty will be the toughest," cheered John before sending bome a strike.

Bob blazed the alleys for 202 and 188 games and then skidded to a low 123 for a 5f3 series. "It's just one of those things," he said.

How successful the bottom teams are can be seen from the record books. The figures show no less than 18 wins recorded over last years' champs, Cedar Lawn Motel. The frontwinners have lost only 29½ games.

Larry's Standard, a cellar dweller since Feb. 25, still can throw a monkey wrench into the league standings. "Our main trouble has been hiding in the fact that not enough guys have showed up for the games every week," quoted Tom Rogers, the captain.

'We're Hot Now'

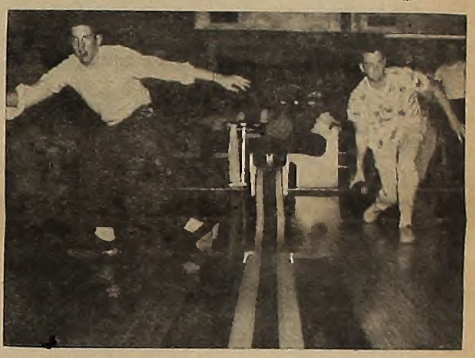
"But we're rolling hot now," broke in Leon Knit, finishing his 203 pin game, highest in his career, "Look at us now—thirteen wins in the last sixteen games with three of those coming against Bowl Inn."

"There's no doubt about it. We'll have something to say before the final standings are announced," said Bill Timm.

Setting the pace in high games for the season is Walter Voecks with a 245 pin count, followed by Chuck Schumann's 224 and Phil Moeller's identical 224.

John Chezik holds the highest honors in higb series department the six records in the two team with a 572, Bowl Inn holds five of departments, having rolled the three highest series, 2,431, 2,312 and 2,302 and taking top spot in a single game with a 852 pin total.

Spares and splits, strikes and fouls, new records in single games, series or even hamburger consumption—all add up to spirited and exciting Wednesday evenings at tbe local bowling lanes.



RIGHT OOWN the alley—that's where TRUMPET lansman Wayne Krueger was standing when he snapped this shot of Mel Schlichting and John Chezik as they concantrated on strikes. Krueger escaped uninjured.

Waverly Pastor McMichael Sets Up Criteria For Bulletin Board Along Bremer Avenue

By Myrna See

What's the word for today? Many people look at the bulletin board of Waverly's Methodist Church for the answer.

Bite-sized tidbits of food for thought are placed there three times weekly by the Rev. Glenn McMichael, pastor, known to many as "Rev. Mac."

From the five-foot square board, the messages, spelled out in five-inch letters, have far-reaching range. Conveniently located on Bremer Avenue, some people make a point to drive past and read it regularly. In addition to local comment, the board has been mentioned in Gordon Gammack's Des Moines Register column.

Policemen Get Calls On 'Word'

One midnight, as Rev. Mac was changing the board, a passing policeman stopped to talk. Sometimes during the quiet hours of the night, the officer said, he would get an inquiry over the police radio from Des Moines: "What's on the bulletin board for tonight?"

Helpful people supply much of the material for the board by bringing in booklets and advertising pamphlets and watching bulletin boards in other towns. Wisdom without wise crack is a criteria for the sayings.

"Although I own a book of snappy sayings for bulletin boards, I'd like to write one called 'Sayings for Bulletin Boards—None of Them Snappy'."

Truth, and general, rather than denominational, interest, are other tests material must pass.

'Most Proverbs Are Half Truths'

"The difficulty is," comments the minister, "that most proverbs are half truths. They have to be so largely true that people will understand them in the way they are intended."

After passing these exams, the sayings undergo surgery to enable them to fit the available letters and space . As much as two hours' work goes into this.

With the building of the new Methodist Church on West Bremer Avenue, the Rev. Mac envisions a two-faced bulletin board at right angles to the highway for easier reading.

One of the board's messages once read: "Inner radiance will find outward expression." Perhaps the bulletin board itself is an illustration of its truth.

Board Coordinates Women, Takes Large Responsibility

By Kay Fritschel

". . . an organization of elected representatives from each housing unit whose purpose is to create a sense of unity and fellowship among the women; to promote and maintain the highest standards of college life; to regulate matters of conduct not falling under the jurisdiction of the administration; and to sponsor worthwhile projects of cultural and social value to all women."—College catalog.

Quite an assignment for one organization, but this is the function of WCB — Women's Coordinating Board.

With Dean of Women Florence Hertlein as adviser, the board is composed of a representative from each dorm floor, and one from each off-campus unit. Current head of the board is senior Jean Pfeifer.

Other officers include senior Editb Baderschneider, vice president, and junior Joan Boughton, secretary. Currently running for presidency are juniors Carolyn Adix, Lucy Antholz, Lois Lehmann, Maurice Nissen and Helen Schwerin.

According to Miss Pfeifer, "The board is given the responsibility of enforcing rules for Wartburg women."

Latest effort is the "Code for Knightly Living," the rule book for Knighties. This code is periodically gone over and revised in cooperation with the dorm councils.

WCB has a big assignment, but it is another example of student self-government in action.

Drs. Reuss, Becker Slated As Speakers

Dr. Carl Reuss, Columbus, Ohio, will be the main speaker for commencement exercises to be held in Knights Gymnasium May 29 at 10 a.m.

Dr. Reuss, former dean of faculty at Wartburg, is the executive secretary of the Board of Social Action of the American Lutheran Church.

Baccalaureate services are to be held at St. Paul's Church at 4 p.m. May 27, with Dr. C. H. Becker, Wartburg College president, delivering the sermon.

Association Accepts 5 College Poems

Four Wartburg students and an instructor won awards in the recent Iowa Poetry Association contest. The second prize of $5 was won by junior Don Metzger, and the third prize of $3 won by freshman Herbert Hein.

Other winners include Marvin Bryce, junior, and Gerald Westerbuhr, senior. All are students of Miss Margaret Wolff, head of the Journalism Department, who also had a poem accepted.
